To Investigate McKane's Connection with the New Building.

Contractor John H. O'Rourke and Jacques Stryker had a long consultation at 40 Court street, Brooklyn, this morn-ing over the report which is to be made to the Board of Audit of Gravesend, Thursday, on the accounts of John Y. Mc-

The report has been prepared, and it is said to cover forty typewritten pages. The only statement made to the public on the report is in the announcement made by Mr. Roderick, that it shows the town to be in McKane's debt to the extent of between $20,000 and $60,000.

A Gravesend official who says he has seen the report, told an "Evening World" reporter to-day that the document fully explained away all the charges made against McKane, including the disposition of the missing $20,000 worth of bonds. Vouchers and cancelled checks, it is said, will accompany the report. on the report is in the announcement

"Oh, yes, sir. I saw them do it."

"How do you know that Boland did not shoot Mr. Ross?"

"Why, he didn't fire until Shea had shot Robert Ross."

The defense failed to shake this lot of testimony, the only thing the witness failed to affirm being that he could not say that Boland had not fired before the time he saw him. He further said: "I swear positively that I saw Shea kill Robert Ross."

August Ellenberg, of 65 Jefferson street, Hobaken, his wife, Annie Ellenberg, about thirty-five years old, and five-year-old Gertrude Ellenburg, were crossing West street, near Warren street, at 3.15 o'clock this afternoon or their way to the Eric ferry.

They were half way across the street when a big truck owned by I. Hether ington, of 831 Washington street, came mbering along. The truck was heavily lumbering along. The truck was heavily leaded with boxes and barrels of liquors. The truck passed along until the big rear wheel was opposite the Ellenburg family. Then the wheel suddenly siloned from the axle, fell outward and on Mrs. Ellenburg and her daughter.

The wheel and the weight of the truck planed them to the modely pavement. The little girl's leg was snapped like a pipe stem. The mother was badly burt internally. They were taken to chambers Street Hospital.

Mr. Ellenburg was not hurt, John Moore, driver of the truck, will probably be arrested.
